

Ed has lived in Bath for 14 years with his wife Sandi and his sons Justin and Eric. He has immersed himself into the community working with the Bath Community Revitalization Committee and leading the Economic Development and the Grass Roots Fund Raising sub-committees.

Ed says that "One of the most rewarding projects has been the establishment of the Bath Sunday Market." - which he has managed since its inception in 2008.

An engineer and retired businessman, Ed has held executive management positions at Bombardier; as well as Spar Aerospace and General Motors.

Ed sees the pride residents take in the Loyalist community and what they can accomplish working together.

In addition to representing the views of the people of Bath on Council, he will help lead Loyalist Township to improved economic health and wealth, and improved quality of living while addressing the concerns and issues brought forth by its residents with respect.
